The 99 'Lost' Names

Work began on 3rd April 2026

Ninety nine "lost" names from the British Roll of Honour for the Battle of Normandy are being engraved on the British Normandy Memorial to join those of the 22,442 names already inscribed there. The total of number of names on the Roll of Honour now stands at 22, 541.

Record keeping during the Second World War was at times incomplete or contradictory

Careful research by the Normandy Memorial Trust has now brought together these "lost" names. They include a Belgian army officer serving with the British 29th Armoured Brigade and a pilot with the United States Naval Reserve who was assigned to a special squadron operating under British command.

The names will be engraved on a special "Addenda" panel on the west wall of 'Memorial Court' where they will be dedicated as part of the D-Day 82 commemorations in June.
